Google Season of Docs

Fostering open source collaboration with technical writers

Visit https://g.co/seasonofdocs

Documentation is essential to the adoption of open source projects and to the success of their communities. Google Season of Docs brings technical writers and open source projects together to improve documentation, foster collaboration, and learn documentation best practices in the open source space.

During the program, open source organizations work closely with technical writers to create documentation projects and measure documentation impact. Technical writers learn open source practices and develop new skills.

Want to join in? Visit the website at https://g.co/seasonofdocs

2023 Timeline

February 15 - March 24	Open source organizations apply
March 31	Accepted organizations announced
March 31 - November 13	Documentation development period
June 14	Monthly evaluations begin
November 6 - 21	Case studies and final project reports submitted
December 5	Google publishes the 2023 case studies and aggregate project data

Announcements	Questions?	Social
https://groups.google.com/group/ season-of-docs-announce	season-of-docs@google.com	#SeasonofDocs